

Switching Gallery Software

Contributed by Daniel Hienzsch
Tuesday, 16 December 2008
Last Updated Tuesday, 16 December 2008

Some have been wondering where the pictures from my trip to Egypt are. Well, after many months of flipping back and forth on the topic of photo gallery software, I decided that the difficulty of transitioning from one piece of gallery management software to another was far outweighed by the benefit of having something that has better SEF capabilities. If that last sentence made no sense to you, don't worry. Essentially, I'm changing my gallery software so that Google can search it. That does mean that I have to reimport all my photos, recategorize them, title them, add descriptions, etc. etc. and so forth. This may take a while, but I'll be happier in the long run.